Important Update on the Adventurous Journey Section as part of The Award Programme

We are excited to announce a flexibility to the Adventure Journey requirements:

-Bronze Level: The Practice Adventure Journey can be waived if the NAO considers that adequate preliminary training is done, and the requirements of the Adventurous Journey. This adjustment is aimed at making the Award Programme more accessible and encouraging wider participation at the introductory level.

-Silver & Gold Levels: The Practice Adventure Journey remains a mandatory component. Participants at these levels are required to complete The Preliminary Training, the Practice Journey and the Qualifying Journeys to meet the programme's standards.

This change allows participants to focus on enjoying the experience of self discovery from the Adventure

This change allows participants to focus on enjoying the experience of self discovery from the Adventure Journey experience at Bronze while maintaining the rigor and leadership development elements at Silver and Gold levels.

For any clarification/assistance, please contact the programme team.

The Award in Action

Across India, young people are putting the spirit of the Award into action through service, skills, adventure, and recreation.

With many inspiring entries pouring in from Award Units nationwide, we're excited to share a series of stories that showcase the passion, purpose, and perseverance of our participants!

Report by Cambridge International School, Phagwara

A group of 56 IAYP Award participants from Cambridge International School, Phagwara embarked on an Adventure Journey to Manali. The aim of the journey was to develop self-reliance, foster teamwork, explore nature, and experience the local culture and adventure sports offered by this popular hill station.

The Future Visions of India Design Challenge is a unique opportunity for young people under 30 to creatively imagine what India could look like in 2047. As part of the Our Future India campaign - led by the Next Generation India Fellows (a joint initiative by the UN Foundation and CEEW) - this challenge invites participants to explore and express their vision of the future across five major themes: artificial intelligence, climate change, urbanization, demographic trends, and geopolitical shifts.

Selected submissions will be featured in the Our India Report, which will be launched at the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA80) in New York this September and showcased at other key global events. This is an exciting platform for young creatives to contribute to shaping India's future on the world stage!

The deadline to apply is July 7.
